Greater Success with Shade Gardening

Homeowners often struggle with shade. These difficult-to-landscape areas might be on the home's north side or under large trees. Instead of viewing shaded locations as problem spots and selecting plants that merely tolerate low light, let's embrace the opportunity and develop plantings that thrive beautifully and abundantly. We'll investigate the keys to successful gardening in shaded locations. Trees, shrubs, perennial and annual flowers that prefer shade will be described. Growing tips will include ways to improve the soil, how to fertilize effectively, pitfalls to avoid and design methods to create a shade garden showplace. Get ideas for beautifying bare spots underneath evergreen trees and other trouble areas. But most of all, we'll learn to appreciate our shaded opportunities. Turn your shade garden into your favorite landscape feature!

The Great Tomato Race

Tomatoes have long held the number one spot in home gardening. Even homeowners without vegetable gardens find a flowerbed or spot by the house foundation for a tomato plant or two to satisfy their hunger. And it's all about getting the first big, ripe, juicy tomato of the season. It's a race, and the earlier the better. Not only will you enjoy mouth-watering fruits, but you'll earn bragging rights if you out-produce your neighbors! All in a fun, friendly competition. There are definite, easy-to-do tips that can produce tomatoes earlier by two to three weeks or more. We'll discuss the best varieties, fertilizers, disease control, plus the secrets of coaxing earlier production. Seed-starting techniques will help growers who'd like to grow their own plants. Whether you're growing one plant in a patio pot or dozens in a huge garden, it's fun to talk tomatoes!

Tried and True Tips for Successful Lawns, Landscaping, and Home Gardening

How often should lawns be fertilized? Is it best to bag clippings while mowing? When is the best time to prune apple trees? Why didn't the tulips bloom? Is there a way to cut down on weeding in vegetables? How can an older landscape be improved without an expensive redo? Let's take an imaginary walk around the yard, garden and flowerbeds and offer tips for improved success with all things growing. No trendy flashpoints among these ideas: just time-honored gardening techniques for northern gardeners and homeowners. We'll even talk indoor gardening. There's something for everyone here!

Design It, Paint it, Place It: Creating a Home that Hugs You

Join Maria Bosak as she walks you through creating and designing a home that hugs you, and how you can do this without breaking the bank. You will learn tips on how to use the popular Annie Sloan Chalk Paint to refresh a tired piece of furniture into a stylish new piece for your home, in addition you will learn tricks to organize your design ideas and how to implement them in the rooms of your home.

Kitchens & Baths: Trends, Ideas & Journeys

Learn what it takes to complete kitchen and bathroom projects, implementing the latest design trends and ideas. Accent Kitchen & Bath's team of experts will take you on a journey through pictures and videos of before-and-after images illustrating design implementation and construction-issue problem solving that you, as a home owner, can use for your future projects.

NEW THIS YEAR!

Free mobile app offers tools to explore the show

The new mobile app will allow costumers to check out Home & Garden Show exhibitors and plan a route ahead of time. The app will be available for Apple devices through the App Store and for Android devices through Google Play. Through this new tool, costumers can browse exhibitors by name or service and tag them on the map to help chart a course upon arrival at the Fargodome. For best results, download the app before arriving at the event. It also includes all of our workshop details, admission deals, kids features and Beer Walk information.

Show features first-ever kids' Treasure Hunt

Those planning to bring little ones to the Home & Garden Show can now participate in the first-ever kids' Treasure Hunt! The Treasure Hunt is for kids age 12 and under and will help entertain them while costumers explore, visit with exhibitors and learn!

The first stop on the hunt is booth C565, Design Direction, Inc., located near the west entrance. There, they can pick up a treasure hunt map and special backpack for kids to carry all their treasures. Kids must have the hunt-provided backpack to participate. The hunt is limited to the first 500 kids.

Show welcomes 'rock star' line up for workshops

Experience local! This year's Red River Valley Home & Garden Show is taking a fresh approach to its workshops this year by tapping into our own area's talent addressing topics that we know you want to learn more about: Gardening, Cooking, DIY and Design.

With that thought in mind, we interviewed our local celebrities in true rock band fashion so you can learn a little more about them as people, some of their quirks, and what you'll take away from the show this year by attending their workshops.

We've also asked them some fun questions about each others' fields to truly test their well-roundedness!

Here they are! Forum columnist and horticulturist Don Kinzler; Chef Eric Watson of Mosaic Foods/Mezzaluna/Rustica; Maria Bozak, EcoChic Boutique; and Tom Spaeth from Accent Kitchen & Bath.

Admission Savings!

The Home & Garden Show ticket provides value for you! Enjoy one-stop shopping, content-rich workshops, plus activities for the kids! Regular admission is $10, but there are plenty of discounts available so you can bring the entire family!
